Vinterbilleder

Jeg holder af at lave vinterbilleder. Sneen er med til at forenkle landskabet. Nogle vinterdage forstærkes det forenklede vinterlandskab yderligere af en kold dis, der bløder konturerne af landskabets elementer endnu mere op.

Her på årets sidste dage fik jeg igen den tanke, at vi – lige som det smukke forenklede landskab – burde fokusere mere på det enkle, simple liv.

En af de mest værdifulde erfaringer for mig er, hvor stor glæde der ligger i det enkle. Det lyder banalt, men at vågne hver morgen er et mirakel, og hvis vi indretter os fornuftigt, så er der altid noget i hverdagen, vi kan glæde os til.

Det behøver ikke at være noget ekstravagant. Jeg glæder mig til at betragte de travle fugle på mit faglebræt. Den oplevelse bliver nærmest eufori, hvis en sjælden fugl kommer forbi.

Ugens fotografier er fra Kongerslev Præstegårdshede. Enkle vinterbilleder fra et ubetydeligt naturareal midt i den store verden. Her findes ingen bjerge eller voldsomme floder. Her finder du ikke de store rovdyr. Men er du heldig får du lov til at opleve en lille fugl som dompappen i dens fineste farvepragt.

Winter pictures

I enjoy creating winter pictures. The snow helps simplify the landscape. On some winter days, the simplified winter landscape is further enhanced by a cold mist that softens the contours of the landscape's elements even more.

Here, in the final days of the year, I was struck again by the thought that we—just like the beautiful, simplified landscape—should focus more on a simple, uncomplicated life.

One of the most valuable lessons I have learned is how much joy there is in simplicity. It may sound cliché, but waking up every morning is a miracle, and if we organize our lives sensibly, there will always be something in our daily routine to look forward to.

It does not have to be extravagant. I look forward to watching the busy birds at my bird feeder. That experience becomes almost euphoric if a rare bird happens to stop by.

This week's photographs are from Kongerslev Præstegårdshede. Simple winter pictures from an unremarkable natural area in the middle of the vast world. Here, you will not see mountains or powerful rivers. You will not find great predators. But if you are lucky, you might catch a glimpse of a small bird, like the bullfinch, in its most vibrant colours.
